BONDS MAY BE ISSUED AT NORTH CHARLEROI FOR ERECTION OF LARGER SCHOOL BUILDING

VOTERS WILL BE ASKED TO MAKE FINAL DECISION ON THE MATTER

Necessary to Rent Room in the Borough in Order to Relieve Present Overcrowded Condition

With the idea in view of erecting a new school building at North Charleroi, which is greatly needed, the school board of that borough has made arrangements for holding an election of a proposed bond issue of $22,000. A meeting was held last night at which time G. P. Baker, Esq., of Washington was present, and he was instructed to prepare for putting the proposed issue to vote.

In case the bond issue is favored it is planned to erect the building next year on the site of the present structure which it is proposed to either tear down or move. Work would be started immediately upon the close of the present term of school, and the new building would be finished by the beginning of the next term. The existing crowded conditions make the move imperative. In the present building there are four rooms, each one of which is overcrowded, and another room is being used for a second season in Library Hall. The schools opened Monday last week with an enrollment of about 210.

The borough of North Charleroi is in good shape for the issue of bonds. There is no existing indebtedness and the taxes have been collected up well, for example only $130 of the 1908 taxes being outstanding. An increase of $100 has been granted in the State school appropriation just received, this year's amount being $838. During the past year 19 new houses were erected.

The members and officers of the board are as follows: President, J. H. Springer; secretary, Bowman Horn; P. E. Kramer, John Hogan, Albert Metz, I. N. Kibler.

Post Office Inspector Has Praise For The Interior Workings of Local Office

Good Service Being Rendered by Post Master McCardle and His Force of Clerks, Says Mr. Williams

United States Postoffice Inspector H. H. Williams has nothing but praise for Postmaster J. E. McCardle and his force in the interior conduct of the local postoffice. Mr. Williams was here yesterday making his annual inspection of the local postoffice. He denied that he came on any special purpose, and said that vacation time on the part of the clerks and the carriers had claimed some attention. Mr. Williams said: "Postmaster McCardle is making a splendid postmaster as the people of Charleroi probably know better than I. He has a competent clerical force and the interior arrangements are most harmonious. Mr. McCardle and his assistant postmaster D. A. Oates, both of whom are new in the service have well adapted themselves to their positions and that with the capable work of the clerks and carriers is responsible for the good service now being given."

NORTH CHARLEROI TO LAY NEW SEWERS IN BOROUGH

Map Will Be Prepared and Presented to The State Department of Health in The Near Future

The street committee of the North Charleroi council has been empowered to secure a map for an eight-inch sanitary sewer of North Charleroi for the part not already sewered, to be sent to the State Health Department for approval. During the past few years the borough has been making rapid stride in the way of improvements and this action to secure a map was taken at a meeting of council Monday night. Already there has been a good part of North Charleroi sewered.

At the same time the borough solicitor was instructed to arrange for a change in a railroad crossing from Fifth street to Seventh street. The borough is to stand the expense of grading and the railroad company will pay for the work done on their right-of-way.

Bills were ordered paid as follows: Greensboro Gas company.....$7.05

HITTING WINS THE PENNANT

Episcopals Pull Out Ahead Through Batting

GUDER LEADS THE LEAGUE

An inspection of the official records of the Charleroi Church League as prepared by the secretary, Paul Rylands, discloses ample reason for the fine showing of the Episcopal team which won the pennant rather handily. From the tail end of the procession in 1909 to the leadership in 1910 was a step made possible by the good all around work of the regular players of this team. Its friends claimed that its inability to line up its regular membership for all games is responsible for its not having won even a larger percentage of victories, although ten out of fourteen is a very gratifying record.

Guder leads the league with a batting average of .500 and his throwing to bases was almost perfect. Kuhn at short played remarkably good ball and scored a total of 17 runs in 14 games, a splendid showing. His batting average is .271. He stole seven bases. Spridek leads the team in stolen bases, with nine. Cratty, Johnston and Simcox closely following. Cratty played almost every position on the team and wound up the season with a grand batting average of .308.

At the field meet, held after the close of the season, his throwing from the outfield really won the contest for the Episcopal team, but his score was not allowed for the reason that two members of the team had already contested. Grover and Bragg easily lead the pitchers of the league, having won every game they pitched. The batting average of the regular team was .278, its fielding, .867.

All of Permissable Working Age May Get Jobs

TO START WORK FRIDAY

Steady Run With Orders Ahead Anticipated For Entire Season

Superintendent H. J. Booth of the Imperial Glass company has issued a call for all the boys in Charleroi, of permissible working age, who want jobs to appear at the Imperial plant on Friday. At this time the factory will be reopened for the coming year, and heavy demand of ware put out by the company has made the call imperative.

During the summer the Imperial company installed four machines for bottle blowing, and these having proved a good investment for the making of the heavier grade of ware, will in all probability be operated all winter. The use of the machines will mean a saving in the number of boys employed in this special department, but all those applying for positions will be given work, providing they hold working certificates.

PATROL IS PURCHASED

Uniontown Follows Charleroi's Lead In Getting Machine

IS OF THE BUICK MAKE

Attracted by the success attained by the Charleroi police department in the use of their new Buick automobile patrol wagon, the Uniontown borough council has ordered one for that borough to be built on a model similar to the Charleroi machine. Not long ago chief of Police Frank McCarthy, S. W. Gaddis and W. D. Grice, the councilmanic committee, Charles Johnston, and L. L. Crowford made a trip to Charleroi to inspect the new patrol and were so much pleased with it that they reported favorably upon the purchase of a machine with the action being subsequently taken.

Franz

Miss Anna Loretta Franz, of Fostoria, Ohio, formerly of Charleroi, died suddenly at her home Saturday. The funeral took place from the Catholic church at that place on Tuesday. The deceased was a cousin of Mrs. J. F. Johnston, of Eighth street.

ONE STUDY ELIMINATED

Music Banished From the Curriculum at Fayette City

ACTION AT THIRD SESSION

The Fayette City school board is evidently composed of members who "have no music in their souls" but whether they come under Shakespeare's classification is a question which would be hard to decide. The school board of that thriving little city last night after having held up action for two meetings voted to eliminate the study of music from the public schools. Just what the directors have against music is a secret. Last year music was taught the same as in other up-to-date schools, but the success attained in its study by the pupils did not evidently flatter the hard-headed school authorities.

The Fayette City schools opened yesterday with an enrollment of 416, 208 boys and 208 girls. There are nine teachers under Principal C. H. Cuppet.

Saw Wood Awhile

Now that every holiday, picnic, reunion, and blowout generally that concerns a whole or a part of the public has passed, an opportunity is given the business interests of the town to get down to work and recuperate for the interruptions they have encountered by reason of these festivities that predominate during the summer months. Because of these interruptions, trade has languished more than it would ordinarily during what is termed the dull season. The vacation period, also, is a big demoralizer, both in business and manufacturing, and in order to conform to the growing custom of permitting the force to take a brief leave of absence, business and manufacturing is cut down, and this lull has become so general that it affects the whole country.

This holiday aspect in business and manufacturing has created a condition that should be taken account of, and steps taken to offset its demoralizing effects. It is not only harmful to business and manufacturing, but the working people lose employment.
There are always a large number of unemployed people the whole years around who might be employed while the regular workers are taking a rest.
But when the workers rest and business practically suspends until they return, the idle ones have no chance.
In many instances the accumulation of business while the force is broken
has also an after demoralizing effect.
Now that no holiday intervenes until Thanksgiving, all the business forces of the community can conserve their resources and repair the broken lines caused by the social and recreative interruptions.

A Wise Move

Our progressive neighbor, North Charleroi, is to be congratulated for the action of its school board in calling for a bond issue with which to build a new school house. By reason of its location North Charleroi is a residence section is thh key to two big instrial towns—Charleroi and Monessen. The town has some big improvements dathly in the way of street paving and seweping, and is a most desirable resi-denetown. A new school house will add greatly to the public improvements.
Between now and the time when

the electors will be called upon to pass judgment on the proposed bond issue, they should consider carefully the subject, and the advantages to be derived by modern, up-to-date school facilities. With an indebtedness the district is able to assume the obligation without burdening the taxpayers.
The new structure will materially enhance real estate values, because it will increase school facilities, and this makes any town more desirable as a residence district. The payment of the indebtedness will be distributed over a long period of years, and those who come to the town later will contribute to the expense. It is to be hoped that the matter will receive the unanimous approval of the electors.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

With the great number of "Men

to the ground, the sharp eyed sleuths
of novel fame will run out of a job shortly.

The first thing after class organization in high school or college is the class light. That is sort of a vain-glorious proceeding with no symptoms of perfunctory performance of duty.

The intricacies of the "amo, amas, amat" to the first year High School student, and the vagaries of the geometrical procession to the last year student are strictly "not in it" with the "real thing" in business life.

The only thing a newspaper man has any business in is the other fellow's business.

About the only time the average woman is ever economical is when she is purchasing socks and neckties for her husband.

is, possibly because he went in for the life saving things.

Soon the opera troupes will make their appearance. Thereupon the railroad detectives will have a harder job then ever to prevent track walking.

Three-fourths of the cartoonist's

HIRED APPLAUSE.

The Great Rachel Made the Claque
Earn Its Money.

Speaking of applause in theaters, a theatrical man relates the following concerning the great actress Rachel:
"It seems that upon a certain opening night Rachel reserved enthusiastic applause, but on the second night it was so noticeably slim that the actress felt deeply grieved and bitterly complained that the claque was not doing its duty. The leader of the hired 'applause makers' on hearing of her displeasure wrote her a letter in which he endeavored to excuse himself from any blame.

"Mademoiselle—I cannot remain under the obloquy of a reproach from such lips as yours," he began. "The following is an authentic statement of what really took place: At the first representation I led the attack in person not less than thirty-three times.
We had three exclamations, four hilar-ities, two thrilling movements, four renewals of applause and two indele-ble explosions. In fact, to such an extent did we carry our applause that the occupants of the stalls were scandalized and cried out a la porte!"

"My men were positively exhausted with fatigue and even intimated to me that they could not again go through such an evening. Seeing such to be the case, I applied for the manuscript,
and after having profoundly studied the piece I was obliged to make up my mind for the second representation to certain curtailments in the service of my men."

"The writer thus goes on at some length to assure the actress he will try to make future amends and requests her to believe in his profound admiration."—Exchange.

TALKING IN FIGURES.

Significance of Certain Numbers in the Telegraphers' Code.

"In the telegraphers' code numbers have special significance of which the general public is not aware," remarked
a veteran key night the other day.
"Most everybody knows that 30 means 'good night,' or the end of a story, but few outside the profession know that 31 is also a code sign. Railroad operators, however, know that this call is a signal to the operator at the other end to come back and repeat train signals to the sending operator.
It also has another meaning. 'Train order to be signed by conductor and engine driver.' Nineteen, on the other hand, means that the train order is not to be signed by conductor or engine driver. Twenty-four has also the latter significance on some roads.

"Five is simply an interrogation point and in the vernacular could be translated 'Anything doing?' Thirteen signifies 'Do you understand?' 'Twenty-five means 'busy,' but nobody seems to know how it came to have that significance unless perhaps it means that the operator is still in the midst of his work, being some distance away from 30.

"Seventy-three means 'best regards,'
and newspaper men and operators employ this expression constantly. Of course 23 has come to mean in this numerical language just what it does in ordinary parlance, 'skiddoo,' 'va-moose' or 'butt out' or any of the thousand and one other equivalents."—New York Herald.

The Governor's Quick Wit.

While talking to a former governor of Illinois, who was noted for the quickness of his wit, an English tourist spoke with special fervor of a sight
he had seen in another state.

"I attended a Sunday service for the inmates of the state prison," he said, "and I learned that of the 208 persons now confined there all but twelve voluntarily attend religious services held in the prison chapel twice each Sunday.

"Most extraordinary," said the governor musingly. "I am sorry to say it is not so with us. But then," he added soberly, "in Illinois, you see, most of the respectable people do not come to prison."—Lippincott's.

who was accompanied by his wife.
After they had gone on some little dis-

"Oh, yes," said Jones. "You see, she's

"Lucky chap is Robinson. But I sup-

asked Brown.

MARK TWAIN'S CLOTHES.

The Great Humorist Always Had a Relish For Personal Effect.

At the time of our first meeting
Mark Twain was wearing a sealskin coat, with the fur out, in the satisfaction of a caprice or the love of strong effect which he was apt to indulge through life. Fields, the publisher, was present.

I do not know what droll comment was in Fields' mind with respect to this garment, but probably he felt that here was an original who was not to be brought to any Hostonian look in the judgment of his vivid qualities. With his crest of dense red hair and the wide sweep of his flaming mustache Clemens was not dis-cordantly clothed in that sealskin coat, which afterward, in spite of his own warmth in it, sent the cold chills through me when I once accompanied it down Broadway, and shared the immense publicity it won him.

Clemens had always a relish for personal effect, which expressed itself in the white suit of complete serge which he wore in his last years and in the Oxford gown which he put on for every possible occasion and said he would like to wear all the time. That was not vanity in him, but a keen feeling for costume which the severity of our modern tailoring forbids men, though it flatters women to every excess in it.—W. D. Howells in Harper's Magazine.

HIS BLACK EYE.

How He Got It and the Worst That Was Yet to Come.

"Gracious! That's a peach of a black eye. Where did you get it?"
"Got it on the left side of my nose.
Where did you think I got it—over the ankle bone?"

"Don't get heated. How did it all happen?"

"That's different. It was all a piece of my confounded luck. I was up on the Blue Cliff road looking at a piece of real estate when along came a coatless and bareheaded fellow running for dear life with a lot of panting pursuers stretching in a long line behind him. I joined in the chase. Being fresh, I rapidly overhauled the fugitive. I had nearly collared him when a big ruffian grabbed me and profanely told me to clear out. I spoke rudely to him and kept on running, and he suddenly reached out a fist like a ham and knocked me into a ditch. And what do you suppose it all was?"
"Give it up."

"It was a rehearsal for a moving picture film, and now my portrait will go all over the country and be seen in thousands of theaters as a bruised and battered butter-in who got just what was coming to him!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Cow Decided.

A peasant living in the village of Predeal, near the Hungarian frontier, lost his cow. About two months ago he happened to be standing at the railroad station watching a train load of cattle about to be sent across the frontier. Suddenly he gave a shout.
"That's my cow!" he cried, running toward one of the cars.

The trainmen only laughed at him,
and he went before the magistrate.
This good man listened to the peasant's story patiently. Then he pronounced this judgment: "The cow shall be taken to the public square of Pre-deal and milked. Then if it goes of its own accord to the plaintiff's stable it shall belong to him."

The order of the court was carried out, and the cow, in spite of its ten months' absence, took without hesitation the lane which led it a few minutes later into the peasant's stable.—

A Tribute of Affection.

Something of the sympathetic kindness of nature of the late Frederick Greenwood came out in a little speech made by J. M. Barrie on the occasion of Mr. Greenwood's seventy-fifth birthday, when the men who had worked under him on the St. James' and the Pall Mall Gazette met to do him honor.
In the course of his remarks Mr. Barrie confessed that he had bought his first silk hat "to impress" the veteran editor. Then he added impulsively:
"Oh, Greenwood, it is for your kindness to us boys in our first silk hats that we love you!"

TIGHT HATS.

They Impede Circulation in the Scalp
and Invite Baldness.

Ignominious men are continually contriving new kinds of shoes, new suspenders and hundreds of different kinds of braces, but so far, says the Therapeutic Gazette, no one has taken up the idea of making a hat which will hold on the head and not blow off and at the same time not bind the head all around like a constricting band.

Some men go without hats at times
with the idea that the hair is improved by ventilation and sunshine. Undoubtedly this does improve it, but the prime secret is not in not wearing the hat at
all. The ventilated hat will not prevent baldness if this same hat be worn tightly around the head. If a string be tied ever so lightly around the finger
the effect upon the circulation may be easily marked in the end of that finger. A tight hat will affect the circulation of the scalp in the same way.

Hats which are easily blown off should never be worn, as they will not stay on unless jammed so tightly upon the head as to impede circulation. All still, rigid hats should be very light,
and one should select a size larger than the head measurement and correct
the over size by inserting felt strips under the sweat band, thus giving a cushion-like effect and preventing the constriction at that portion of the scalp.

FIRST POST HOUSES.

Established by Cyrus, the Founder of the Persian Empire.

The first posts are said to have originated in the regular couriers established by Cyrus the Great about 550
B. C., who erected post houses throughout the kingdom of Persia. Augustus was the first to introduce this institution among the Romans, 31 B. C., and he was imitated by Charlemagne about 800 A. D. Louis XI. was the first sovereign to establish post houses in France, owing to his eagerness for news, and they were also the first institution of this nature in Europe.
This was in 1470, or about 2,000 years
after they were started in Persia.

In England in the reign of Edward IV. (1481) riders on post horses went stages of the distance of twenty miles from each other in order to procure the king the earliest intelligence of the events that passed in the course of the war that had arisen with the Scots. A proclamation was issued by Charles I.
in 1631 that, "whereas at this time
there hath been no certain intercourse between the kingdoms of England and Scotland, the king now commands his postmaster of England for foreign posts to settle a running post or two between Edinburgh and London to go thither and come back again in six days."

The Active Sloth Bear.

The sloth bear appears to be the most active of all the bears in the zoo.
Whoever misnamed the animal ought to bestow a more appropriate title," said a woman visitor who sat on a bench in front of the bear dens.

"A more befitting designation would be 'Ursus pugilisticus' or something like that, for he is certainly the most pugnacious of all the bear specimens here. And he gets away with it, too, although he weighs only 250 pounds.
I saw him knock out the hairy eared bear in a fierce fight over a piece of meat, and he gets the better of the great Yezo bear of about 1,000 pounds in the adjoining inclosure. They fight through the bars. You can hear the snapping of the big bear's jaws as he fails to catch his opponent. But the nervous sloth bear is as quick as a cat with his long claws and gets in a dig on the other one's muzzle that makes him snort with pain."—New

Salt and the Romans.

Spilling of salt is a superstition still current among us. It is derived from the ancient Romans, who used salt in their sacrifices and regarded it as sacred to Penates. To spill it carelessly was to incur the displeasure of these household divinities. After accidentally spilling salt the ancient Roman was wont to throw some over his left shoulder—the shoulder of ill omen —thereby hoping to call away from his neighbor the wrath of the Deity and turn it upon himself.

Elephants' Love For Finery.

Strange as it may seem, the elephant is passionately fond of finery and delights to see himself decked out with gorgeous trappings. The native princes of India are very particular in choosing their state elephants and will give fabulous sums for an animal that exactly meets the somewhat fanciful standards they have erected. For these they have made cloths of silk so heavily embroidered with gold that two men are hardly able to lift them.

Jungle Housekeeping.

The negro housewife in the West Indian jungle finds housekeeping very easy. Fruit and vegetables grow wild all about the hut and the river abounds with fish. On wash day all she has to do is to pick a few of the berries of the soap berry tree, take her clothes to the river and use the berries as she would use ordinary soap. Even her cooking pots grow on the trees, the calabash cut in halves being used for this purpose. Calabashes are used also for bowls, basins and jugs for carrying water from the river while the small ones make excellent cups.
In the afternoon, when she is ready for her cup of tea, the negress picks half a dozen leaves from the lime bush growing at her door, boils them, squeezes the juice from a sugar cane
for sweetening and the coconut supplies the milk. Thus she has a delicious cup of tea without depending on the grocer for it. She makes the mats for her floor out of the dried leaves of the banana, plaited and sewed together as the old country people in this country make their rag mats.

Not For Himself.

"It does me good to see a pompous man get his," said a stockbroker. "I have a friend who just about believes the Lord created the earth in seven days for his especial benefit. He has a fine home on Long Island, with a retinue of servants, but his wife is a semi-invalid, and it falls to the lot of Mr. Pompous to execute various commissions for her in the city. The other day she asked him to stop at a clothing store and get a couple of white duck jackets for the butler. I happened to be with him when he entered the store. Striding majestically up to a sallow little salesman, he said, with much impressive dignity:

"I wish to purchase a couple of white water's coats."

"Yes, sir," said the little salesman.

"What size do you wear?"

"Mr. Pompous got red in the face spluttered and gurgled, and then as he feared to trust himself to speech turned on his heel and strode from the place. He left me at the next corner and has avoided me ever since."—New

An Experience at Hull House.

Even death itself sometimes fails to bring the dignity and serenity which one would fain associate with old age.
I recall the dying hour of one old Scotchwoman whose long struggle to "keep respectable" had so embittered
her that her last words were gibes for those who were trying to minister to
her. "So you came in yourself this morning, did you? You only sent things yesterday. I guess you knew when the doctor was coming. Don't try to warm my feet with anything but that old jacket that I've got there; it belonged to my boy who was drowned at sea nine thirty years ago, but it's warmer yet with human feelings than any or your confounded charity hot water bottles." Suddenly the harsh, gasping voice was stilled in death, and I awaited the doctor's coming, shaken and horrified.—Jane Addams in American Magazine.

Empty Titles.

William Jennings Bryan once joked
about our American fondness for titles.
"You all know of the colonel," he said, "who got his title by inheritance, having married Colonel Brown's widow? But I once met a general who got his title neither by inheritance, nor by service, nor by anything you could mention.

"General," I said to him, "how do you come by this title of yours, any-
way?"

"Why, sir," said he, "I passed my youth in the flour trade and for twenty-seven years was a general miller."

"I know another titled man, Judge Greene.

"Are you, sir? I once asked him, 'a United States judge or a circuit court judge?"

"I ain't neither," he replied. "I'm a judge of boss racism!"

Fear.

Fear causes more disease than do
microbes, more deaths than famine, more failures than panics. It costs more than war, is always a failure and is never necessary, said a medical man.
Fear weakens the heart's action, induces congestion, invites indigestion, produces poison through decomposing foods and is thus the mother of auto-poisoning, which either directly causes or greatly aids in the production of quite 90 per cent of all our diseases.

THE CHAMELEON.

This Curious Animal is Like Two Half Creatures Joined.

The chameleon is not allied closely to any other animal. It stands as a genus by itself. The nervous centers in one lateral half operate independently of those in the other. This seems outrageous, and it is, but it is true. The chameleon has two lateral centers of perception—of sensation and of motion. There exists also a third center—that common one in which abides the power of concentration by means of which the two sides of the creature may be forced to work in harmony with each other. But this center of concentration does not always dominate the situation. Notwithstanding the strictly symmetrical structure of the animal's two halves, the eyes move quite independently, and they convey distinct and separate impressions to their respective centers of perception. As of the eyes, so of the other members—each reports to and is controlled by its own center.

The result is that when the faculty of concentration becomes disturbed everything is jumbled. Let the chameleon be much agitated and its movements grow erratic. They are those of two creatures fastened together, or, rather, of two half creatures joined. Each half exhibits its intention of going its separate way. The result is a pitiable confusion of movement. There is no concordance of action. A curious example of the chameleon's helplessness when unduly excited is found in the fact that it cannot swim. The shock of being plunged into water upsets the poise of its faculty for concentration. Forthwith each side strikes out wildly for itself, to its own undoing. The chameleon is the only four legged vertebrate that cannot swim.

When the creature is calm every impulse to motion is referred to the common center of concentration, and the entire organism acts in fitting accord with the commands issued by that faculty. Thus, while totally different impressions from the two eyes are transmitted from their centers to the common one, that concentrating power decides as to which scene is the more important and then directs the eye otherwise engaged also to regard it. The same principle applies in the control of all the members—so long as the animal remains unexcited. Any observer may easily verify the existence of this dual nature in a superficial way by some experiments with a sleeping chameleon. A touch on one side of the animal will wake that side up, while the other side sleeps calmly on.

WOMEN OF NOTE.

Mrs. T. P. O'Connor's visit to this country is in the interest of Irish industries.

Mrs. Taft's name heads the roll of honorary members of the Daughters of Ohio. She was elected at a recent meeting of the society which was held in New York.

Miss Catharine Regina Seabury, for some years the head of St. Agnes' school at Albany, is spoken of as the successor of Miss Agnes Irwin as dean of Radcliffe college.

Queen Wilhelmina, who has recently become a convert to perfumes, prefers the soft, uncertain French odors, and she uses them in a French way. She scents each article of clothing strongly, but with a different odor.

Mrs. Ellen H. Richards, instructor in the department of chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is to give a course of lectures at the University of California the coming summer on "Household Economics."

Mrs. Mary Nevins Bull, widow of Dr. William T. Bull, has presented to the New York Academy of Medicine a bronze bust of her husband, which was Dr. Bull's last gift to her before he died. She gives it to the academy in his son's name.

Little Miss Emily Boynton of Colorado, who is only thirteen years old, has a record as a mountain climber. She recently ascended Long's peak, commonly called the American Matterhorn, which is 14,271 feet high, scoring the aid of a guide, even at the dangerous points. The feat would be difficult for a man.

Countess von Roos Farrar, a niece of Archdeacon Farrar, is giving her whole time to New York's sick and needy. She has lately secured seventy-five acres at Spring Valley, N. Y., and will build there a home for children of criminals, not only to care for the waifs, but to make a thorough test of the theory of inherited crime. Criminologists are said to be much interested in the results of the venture.

THE TELESCOPE.

Galilei's Rude Instrument the First Used in Astronomy.

The first telescope was pointed toward the sky on Jan. 7, 1610, when Galilei first tried his rude instrument and was rewarded by discovering some of the moons of Jupiter. No great magnifying power was needed for this, as at least one of the moons is large enough to be seen by the naked eye did not the nearness of the brilliant planet prevent this. Lenses had been known for a long time and were at that time in common use by near-sighted persons.

The name of the real discoverer of the telescope seems to be unknown, but the accepted story now is that two young sons of a Middlebury of the name Lippersley some time between 1605 and 1608, while playing with some lenses, happened to hold two of them at a distance from each other and were surprised and delighted to find that the weather vane on a neighboring tower seemed to come near them when looked at through the two lenses. In April, 1609, a little telescope made in Holland was offered for sale in Paris.

The next month Galilei, then a professor in the university at Padua, heard of this instrument and realized at once its importance in the study of astronomy. From the description of the Dutch instrument he had one made at once, and in August he astounded the people of Venice by showing them from the top of the campanile persons entering the doors of the church at Murano. This spyglass was less than two inches in diameter and magnified three times. From this crude instrument of Galilei to the monster telescopes forty inches in diameter of the present day is the development of only three centuries.—Argonaut.

ANIMALS THAT WEEP.

Dugong Tears Preserved by the Malays as a Love Charm.

While the act of laughing may be peculiar to man, the same is not true of weeping, which, if we are to accept the testimony of a French naturalist, is a manifestation of emotion that is met with in divers animals.

It is said that the creatures that weep most easily are the ruminants, with whom the act is so well known that it has given rise to trivial but accurate expression, "to weep like a calf." All hunters know that the stag weeps, and we are also told that the bear sheds tears when it comes to a consciousness of its last hour. The giraffe is not less sensitive and regards with tearful eyes the hunter who has wounded it. This animal also weeps through downright nostalgia. Dogs also are held to be lachrymose, and the same holds in the case of certain monkeys. Sparman states the elephant sheds tears when wounded or when it perceives that it cannot escape.

Aquatic animals, too, it appears, are able to weep. Thus, many authorities agree, dolphins at the moment of death draw deep sighs and shed tears abundantly. A young female seal was observed to weep when teased by a sailor. St. Hilaire and Cuvier recount, on the authority of the Malays, that when a young dugong is captured the mother is sure to be taken also. The little ones then cry out and shed tears. These tears are collected with great care by the Malays and are preserved as a charm that is certain to render a lover's affection lasting.—New York Press.

A PROPHETIC JEWEL.

Peculiar Ring That Was Owned by Marquise du Barry.

Marquise du Barry, whose lovely head fell into the basket beneath the guillotine in expiation of her levity, extravagance and folly, had in her possession a stone of which the Paris jewelers were unable to tell the precise nature.

There appeared upon it below the surface and as if under water an outline of a picture containing human figures. Strange to relate, when first the gem was given to its afterward unfortunate possessor this outline was not clear, but after it had been some months in her possession it grew more vivid.

One day the negro servant boy, Lamo, who was afterward instrumental from revenge in the downfall of the Du Barry, declared, looking at the jewel, that he could decipher the figure of a woman with disheveled hair leaning before a scaffold and surrounded by a crowd, while beside her stood the executioner.

A strange but authenticated circumstance is that the negro servant boy precisely described the guillotine. Dr. Guillotine had not then invented his celebrated instrument of death, nor had the horrors of the revolution begun.

Snatching the jewel from the hand of the servant, Mme. du Barry examined it, saw the kneeling woman, the angry crowd, the death knife falling and, with a cry of agony, fell senseless to the floor.

Fly Traps of Spiders' Nests.

Spiders' nests are used in Mexico as fly traps. During the rainy season the villages are invaded by numbers of flies and other insects. To rid a house of these pests the natives hang the branch of a tree bearing a spider's nest to a nail in the ceiling. The surface of the nest enlarges concentrically after each capture of an insect, and it exercises an irresistible attraction on flies. When a spider's nest is opened it is found to be filled with insects. Experiments made with paper nests so manufactured as to be exact copies of the real nests show that flies will not enter them. Though very small and apparently insignificant, the inhabitant of the mosquito attacks insects far more important in size than the largest housefly. The wasp is one of its favorite victims, and the wasp always gets the worst of the struggle.—Harper's Weekly.

A Silk Producing Caterpillar.

In Assam, where the natives call it "eri," a silk producing caterpillar has been used for silk spinning for centuries, but, strange to say, its employment for the purpose has been restricted almost exclusively to that region. One of its advantages is that its cocoons are not sealed like those of the common silkworm. One end of the cocoon is closed only with converging loops of silk. This renders it unnecessary to kill the insect when its silk is used.

Rubbing It In.

Girls Who Kork

are especially exposed to the dangers of female organic disorders. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has enabled thousands of girls to hold their positions.

Read what these girls say:

Phila., Pa.—"I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier saved my life. When I was 14 years old I was regular and then it went away for a long time. I went to many doctors but none helped me, so I wrote to you for advice and followed your directions. I took the Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and now I am strong and healthy again. I cannot express my gratitude to you."—Lizzie Weber, 4152 N. Fairhill St., Phila., Pa.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"Having suffered for five long years with suppression and great pain every month, spending big money for doctors and getting no cure, I at last went to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine with little hopes, but found just what I needed. To-day I am regular and have no pain, thanks to your advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Lizzie Steiger, 5510 Fleet Ave., S. E., Cleveland, Ohio.

Is it not reasonable to suppose that a medicine that did so much for these girls will do the same for any other girl who is suffering with the same troubles?

These testimonial letters are the genuine and truthful statements from honest people.

Does it not seem the only sensible thing to give such a medicine at least a trial? You may be sure that it can do you no harm, and there is lots of proof that it will do you much good.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

HUNTING THE WALRUS.

The Eskimo Takes Advantage of the Animal's Curiosity.

In his frail skinboat it is a difficult and dangerous task for the Eskimo to go out to sea forty to sixty miles and intercept the walrus as he passes on his migration into the Arctic.

One carcass will fill his boat, for it weighs from 1,000 to 3,000 pounds. He hunts the walrus when they are lying asleep on the ice floes in herds from ten to several hundred. Death must be instantaneous, else with a few rolls or the peculiar lumbering, humping movement (seen of the seal when ashore), he makes the few feet to the water and then is lost, as he has not sufficient blubber and air to float. He has much natural curiosity, and if not scared by shots will come up close to your boat or the ice floe on which you are sitting, spouting, snorting and rolling his eyes; with his gleaming tusks and bristled snout he has an uncanny, goblin, monster-like appearance. A herd of fifty or sixty of them will come up en masse, raise high out of the water to stare at you, then snort, spurt and disappear again, only to come up on the same spot and repeat the maneuver indefinitely. Taking advantage of this the Eskimos hide behind ice hummocks and throw a harpoon into one, then snub the tough rawhide line around an ice cake. He must perforce come up to blow, and he is then killed with the rifle. The thick skin and the mass of blubber and meat beneath render him almost invulnerable.—Pacific Monthly.

An ordinance authorizing the grading, paving with vitrified brick and curbing of McKean Avenue as extended from Thirteenth street to the line of the Borough of North Charleroi.

Be it ordained and enacted by the Burgess and Town Council of the Borough of Charleroi, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same:

Section 1. That the Burgess of the Borough of Charleroi be and is hereby authorized and instructed as required by Ordinance No. 1, Section 3, as amended, to advertise for and receive proposals for the grading, paving with vitrified brick and curbing all that portion of McKean Avenue as extended from Thirteenth Street in said Borough and the line of the Borough of North Charleroi, a distance of 100 feet; (the grading, paving and curbing to be provided being for the purpose of connecting the Southern portion of McKean Avenue, which is graded, paved and curbed, with Lincoln Avenue in the Borough of North Charleroi, which is graded, paved and curbed), in accordance with the plans and specifications of the Borough Engineer, approved by the Burgess and Town Council, and to enter into contract, in conjunction with Council, with any responsible party or parties, such being the lowest and best bidder or bidders, for said grading, paving and curbing; such party or parties to give satisfactory security to do the work in strict conformity to the said plans and specifications of the said Borough Engineer, and under his direction and supervision.

Section 2. Upon the completion and approval of said grading, paving and curbing and the costs and expenses ascertained, the Burgess and Town Council shall assess two-thirds (2/3) of the costs and expenses of the same (excluding, however, from such assessment of two-thirds, the costs and expenses of grading and paving between the rails of the Pittsburgh and Potomac Railway Company, between the tracks and for a width of one foot outside thereof) upon the owners of the real estate bounding or abutting thereon by an equal assessment on the feet front bounding or abutting as aforesaid; to be estimated by the Borough Engineer, as provided by the Act of Assembly approved April 18, 1889, P. L. 44, and the Act of May 31, 1897, P. L. 114.

Ordained and enacted into an ordinance this 5th day of September 1910.

BONDS MAY BE ISSUED AT NORTH CHARLEROI FOR ERECTION OF LARGER SCHOOL BUILDING

VOTERS WILL BE ASKED TO MAKE FINAL DECISION ON THE MATTER

Necessary to Rent Room in the Borough in Order to Relieve Present Overcrowded Condition

With the idea in view of erecting a new school building at North Charleroi, which is greatly needed, the school board of that borough has made arrangements for holding an election on a proposed bond issue of $22,000. The meeting was held last night at which time G. P. Baker, Esq., of Washington was present, and he was instructed to prepare for putting the proposed issue to vote. In case the bond issue is favored it is planned to erect the building next year on the site of the present structure which it is proposed to tear down or move. Work could be started immediately upon the completion of the present term of school. The new building would be finished by the beginning of the next term. The existing crowded conditions make the move imperative. In the present building there are four rooms, each one of which is overcrowded, and another room is being used for a second season in Library Hall. The schools opened Monday of last week with an enrollment of about 210. The borough of North Charleroi is in good shape for the issue of bonds. There is no existing indebtedness and the taxes have been collected up well, for example only $130 of the 1908 taxes being outstanding. An increase of $100 has been granted in the State school appropriation just received, this year's amount being $338. During the past year 19 new houses were erected. The members and officers of the board are as follows: President, J. H. Springer, secretary, Bowman Horn, P. E. Kramer, John Hogan, Albert Metz, I. N. Kibler.

Music Banished From the Curriculum at Fayette City

Decision at Third Session

The Fayette City school board is identically composed of members who have no music in their souls but whether they come under Shakespeare's classification is a question which could be hard to decide. The school board of that thriving little city last night after having held up action for 10 meetings voted to eliminate the study of music from the public schools. Just what the directors have against music is a secret. Last year music was taught the same as in other distate schools, but the success attained in its study by the pupils did not evidently flatter the hard headed board members. The Fayette City schools opened yesterday with an enrollment of 416, 8 boys and 208 girls. There are no teachers under Principal C. H. Upet.

Post Office Inspector Has Praise For The Interior Workings of Local Office

Good Service Being Rendered by Post Master McCardle and His Force of Clerks.

Says Mr. Williams

United States Postoffice Inspector H. H. Williams has nothing but praise for Postmaster J. E. McCardle and his force in the interior conduct of the local postoffice. Mr. Williams was here yesterday making his annual inspection of the local postoffice. He denied that he came on any special purpose, and said that vacation time on the part of the clerks and the carriers had claimed some attention. Mr. Williams said: "Postmaster McCardle is making a splendid postmaster as the people of Charleroi probably know better than I. He has a competent clerical force and the interior arrangements are most harmonious. Mr. McCardle and his assistant postmaster D. A. Oates, both of whom are new in the service have well adapted themselves to their positions and that with the capable work of the clerks and carriers is responsible for the good service now being given."

Map Will Be Prepared and Presented to The State Department of Health in The Near Future

The street committee of the North Charleroi council has been empowered to secure a map for an eight inch sanitary sewer of North Charleroi for the part not already sewered, to be sent to the State Health Department for approval. During the past few years the borough has been making rapid stride in the way of improvements and the action to secure a map was taken at a meeting of council Monday night. Already there has been a good part of North Charleroi sewered.

At the same time the borough solicitor was instructed to arrange for a change in a railroad crossing from Fifth street to Seventh street. The borough is to stand the expense of grading and the railroad company will pay for the work done on their right-of-way.

Bills were ordered paid as follows:

Greensboro Gas company...	$7.05
D. F. Mathers	2.20
J. R. Kelley	14.77

HITTING WINS THE PENNANT

Episcopals Pull Out Ahead Through Batting

GUDER LEADS THE LEAGUE

An inspection of the official records of the Charleroi Church League as prepared by the secretary, Paul Rylands, discloses ample reason for the fine showing of the Episcopal team which won the pennant rather handsily. From the tail end of the procession in 1909 to the leadership in 1910 was a step made possible by the good all around work of the regular players of this team. Its friends claimed that its inability to line up its regular membership for all games is responsible for its not having won even a larger percentage of victories, although ten out of fourteen is a very gratifying record.

Guder leads the league with a batting average of .500 and his throwing to bases was almost perfect. Kuhn at short played remarkably good ball and scored a total of 17 runs in 14 games, a splendid showing. His batting average is .271. He stole seven bases. Spridel leads the team in stolen bases, with nine, Cratty, Johnston and Simcox closely following. Cratty played almost every position on the team and wound up the season with a grand batting average of .308.

At the field meet, held after the close of the season, his throwing from the outfield really won the contest for the Episcopal team, but his score was not allowed for the reason that two members of the team had already contested. Grover and Bragg easily lead the pitchers of the league, having won every game they pitched. The batting average of the regular team was .278, its fielding, .867.

Now that every holiday, picnic, reunion, and blowout generally that concerns a whole or a part of the public has passed, an opportunity is given the business interests of the town to get down to work and recuperate for the interruptions they have encountered by reason of these festivities that predominate during the summer months. Because of these interruptions, trade has languished more than it would ordinarily during what is termed the dull season. The vacation period, also, is a big demoralizer, both in business and manufacturing, and in order to conform to the growing custom of permitting the force to take a brief leave of absence, business and manufacturing is cut down, and this lull has become so general that it affects the whole country.

This holiday aspect in business and manufacturing has created a condition that should be taken account of, and steps taken to offset its demoralizing effects. It is not only harmful to business and manufacturing, but the working people lose employment. There are always a large number of unemployed people the whole year around who might be employed while the regular workers are taking a rest. But when the workers rest and business practically suspends until they return, the idle ones have no chance.

In many instances the accumulation of business while the force is broken has also an after demoralizing effect. Now that no holiday intervenes until Thanksgiving, all the business forces of the community can conserve their resources and repair the broken lines caused by the social and recreative interruption.

A Wise Move

Our progressive neighbor, North Charleroi, is to be congratulated for the action of its school board in calling for a bond issue with which to build a new school house. By reason of its location North Charleroi is a residence section is the key to two big industrial towns—Charleroi and Duquesne. The town has some big improvements daily in the way of street paving and sewerage, and is a most desirable residential town. A new school house will add greatly to the public improvements.

Between Now and the Time When the electors will be called upon to pass judgment on the proposed bond issue, they should consider carefully the subject, and the advantages to be derived by modern, up-to-date school facilities. With no indebtedness the district is able to assume the obligation without burdening the taxpayers. The new structure will materially enhance real estate values, because it will increase school facilities, and this makes any town more desirable as a residence district. The payment of the indebtedness will be distributed over a long period of years, and those who come to the town later will contribute to the expense. It is to be hoped that the matter will receive the unanimous approval of the electors.

HIRED APPLAUSE.

The Great Rachel Made the Claque Earn Its Money.

Speaking of applause in theaters, a theatrical man relates the following concerning the great actress Rachel: "The actress Rachel received enthusiastic applause, but on the second night it was so noticeably thin that the actress felt deeply grieved and bitterly complained that the claque was not doing its duty. The leader of the hired applause makers on hearing of her displeasure wrote her a letter in which he endeavored to exonerate himself from any blame.

"Mademoiselle—I cannot remain under the obloquy of a reproach from such lips as yours," he began. "The following is an authentic statement of what really took place: At the first representation I led the attack in person not less than thirty-three times. We had three acclamations, four hilarities, two thrilling movements, four renewals of applause and two indefinite explosions. In fact, to such an extent did we carry our applause that the occupants of the stalls were scandalized and cried out a la porte.

"My men were positively exhausted with fatigue and even intimated to me that they could not again go through such a performance. So, in the case, I applied for the usual ript, and after having profoundly studied the piece I was obliged to make up my mind for the second representation to certain cut-throats in the service of my men."

"The writer thus goes on at some length to assure the actress he will try to make future attempts and requests her to be lenient in his profound admiration."—Exchange.

TALKING IN FIGURES.

Significance of Certain Numbers in the Telegraphers' Code.

"In the telegraphers' code numbers have special significance of which the general public is not aware," remarked a veteran key night the other day. "Most everybody knows that 30 means 'good night,' or the end of a story, but few outside the profession know that 31 is also a code sign. Railroad operators, however, know that this call is a signal to the operator at the other end to come back and repair train signals to the sending operator. It also has another meaning. 'Train order' to be signed by conductor and engine driver. Moreover, on the other hand, means that the train order is not to be signed by conductor or engine driver. Twenty-four has also the latter significance on some roads.

"There is simply an interrogation point and in the veraculous could be translated 'Anything doing?' Thirteen signifies 'do you understand?' Twenty-five means 'bust,' but nobody seems to know how it came to have that significance unless perhaps it means that the operator is still in the midst of his work, being some distance away from 30.

"Seventy-three means 'best regards,' and newspaper men and operators employ this expression constantly. Of course 22 has come to mean in this numerical language just what it does in ordinary parlance. 'Skiddoo,' 'ramoose' or 'butt out' or any of the thousand and one other equivalents."—New York Herald.

The Governor's Quick Wit.

While talking to a former governor of Illinois, who was noted for the quickness of his wit, an English tourist spoke with special fervor of a sight he had seen in another state.

"I attended a Sunday service for the inmates of the state prison," he said, "and I learned that of the 209 persons now confined there all but twelve voluntarily attend religious services held in the prison chapel twice each Sunday."

"Most extraordinary," said the governor unsingly. "I am sorry to say it is not so with us. But then," he added soberly, "in Illinois, you see, most of the respectable people do not come to prison."—Lippincott's.

Sign Language.

Brown and Jones were having their usual stroll and had just had a few minutes' conversation with Robinson, who was accompanied by his wife. After they had gone on some little distance Brown said to Jones:

"Did you notice that Mrs. Robinson never said a word?"

"Oh, yes," said Jones. "You see, she's deaf and dumb."

"Lucky chap is Robinson. But I suppose she can talk with her fingers?" asked Brown.

"I think so," replied Jones, "for Robinson hasn't a dozen hairs left on his head."

"Come into a fortune, didn't he?"

MARK TWAIN'S CLOTHES.

The Great Humorist Always Had a Relish For Personal Effect.

At the time of our first meeting Mark Twain was wearing a sealskin coat with the fur up in the collar. It was a caprice or the love of strong effect which he was apt to indulge through life. Fields, the publisher, was present.

I do not know what droll comment was in Fields' mind with respect to this garment, but probably he felt that there was an original who was not to be brought to any Bostonian book in the judgment of his vivid qualities. With his crest of dense red hair and the wide sweep of his flaming mustache Clemens was not discordantly clothed in that sealskin coat which afterward, in spite of his own warmth in it, sent the cold chills through me when I once accompanied him down Broadway, and shared the immense publicity it won him.

Clemens had always a relish for personal effect, which expressed itself in the white suit of complete serge which he wore in his last years and in the Oxford gown which he put on for every possible occasion and said he would like to wear all the time. That was not vanity in him, but a keen feeling for costume which his sense of humor in turning torbids men, though it flatters women to every excess in it.—W. D. Howells in Harper's Magazine.

HIS BLACK EYE.

How He Got It and the Worst That Was Yet to Come

"Gracious! That's a peach of a black eye. Where did you get it?"

"Got it on the left side of my nose. Where did you think I got it—over the ankle bone?"

"Don't get heated. How did it all happen?"

"That's different. It was all a piece of my confounded luck. I was up on the Blue Cliff road looking at a piece of real estate when along came a careless and carelessly fellow running for dear life with a lot of painting pursuers stretching in a long line behind him. I joined in the chase. Bona fresh. I rapidly overhauled the fugitive. I had nearly collared him when a big ruffian grabbed me and profanely told me to clear out. I spoke rudely to him and kept on running, and he suddenly reached out a fist like a hammer and knocked me into a ditch. And what do you suppose it all was?"

"Give it up."

"It was a rehearsal for a moving picture film, and now my portrait will go all over the country and be seen in thousands of theaters as a bruised and battered butterfly who got just what was coming to him."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Cow Decided.

A peasant living in the village of Predeal, near the Hungarian frontier, lost his cow. About two months ago he happened to be standing at the railroad station watching a train load of cattle about to be sent across the frontier. Suddenly he gave a shout.

"That's my cow," he cried, running toward one of the cars.

The trainmen only laughed at him, and he went before the magistrate. This good man listened to the peasant's story patiently. Then he pronounced this judgment: "The cow shall be taken to the public square of Predeal and milked. Then if it goes of its own accord to the plaintiff's stable it shall belong to him."

The order of the court was carried out, and the cow, in spite of its ten months' absence, took without hesitation the lane which led it a few minutes later into the peasant

ANIMALS THAT WEEP.

Dugong Tears Preserved by the Malays as a Love Charm.

While the act of laughing may be peculiar to man, the same is not true of weeping, which, if we are to accept the testimony of a French naturalist, is a manifestation of emotion that is met with in divers animals.

It is said that the creatures that weep most easily are the ruminants, with whom the act is so well known that it has given rise to trivial but accurate expression, "to weep like a calf." All hunters know that the stag weeps, and we are also told that the bear sheds tears when it comes to a consciousness of its last hour. The giraffe is not less sensitive and regards with tearful eyes the hunter who has wounded it. This animal also weeps through downright nostalgia. Does also are held to be lachrymose, and the same holds in the case of certain monkeys. Sparrman states the elephant sheds tears when wounded or when it perceives that it cannot escape.

Aquatic animals, too, it appears, are able to weep. Thus many authorities agree, dolphins at the moment of death draw deep sighs and shed tears abundantly. A young female seal was observed to weep when teased by a sailor. St. Martin and Count recount, on the authority of the Malays, that when a young dugong is captured the mother is sure to be taken also. The little ones then cry out and shed tears. These tears are collected with great care by the Malays and are preserved as a charm that is certain to render a lover's affection lasting.—New York Press.

A PROPHETIC JEWEL.

Peculiar Ring That Was Owned by Marquise du Barry.

Marquise du Barry, whose lovely head fell into the basket beneath the guillotine in expiation of her vanity, extravagance and folly, had in her possession a stone of which the Paris jewelers were unable to tell the precise nature.

There appeared upon it below the surface and as if under water an outline of a picture containing human figures. Strange to relate, when the gem was given to its afterward unfortunate possessor this outline was not clear, but after it had been some months in her possession it grew more vivid.

One day the negro servant boy, Lamoignon, who was afterward instrumental from revenge in the downfall of the Du Barry, declared, looking at the jewel, that he could decipher the figure of a woman with disheveled hair leaning before a scaffold and surrounded by a crowd, while beside her stood the executioner.

A strange but authenticated circumstance is that the negro servant boy precisely described the guillotine. Dr. Guillemine had not then invented his celebrated instrument of death, nor had the horrors of the revolution begun. Snatching the jewel from the hand of the servant, Mme du Barry examined it, saw the kneeling woman, the angry crowd, the death knife falling and, with a cry of agony, fell senseless to the floor.

Fly Traps of Spiders' Nests.

Spiders' nests are used in Mexico as fly traps. During the rainy season the villages are invaded by numbers of flies and other insects. To rid a house of these pests the natives hang the branch of a tree bearing a spider's nest to a nail in the ceiling. The surface of the nest enlarges concentrically after each capture of an insect, and it exercises an irresistible attraction on flies. When a spider's nest is opened it is found to be filled with insects. Experiments made with paper nests so manufactured as to be exact copies of the real nests show that flies will not enter them. Though very small and apparently insignificant, the inhabitant of the mosquito attacks insects far more important in size than the largest housefly. The wasp is one of its favorite victims, and the wasp always gets the worst of the struggle.—Harper's Weekly.

A Silk Producing Caterpillar.

In Assam, where the natives call it "eri," a silk producing caterpillar has been used for silk spinning for centuries, but, strange to say, its employment for the purpose has been restricted almost exclusively to that region. One of its advantages is that its cocoons are not sealed like those of the common silkworm. One end of the cocoon is closed only with converging loops of silk. This renders it unnecessary to kill the insect when its silk is used.

Girls Who Work

are especially exposed to the dangers of female organic disorders. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has enabled thousands of girls to hold their positions.

Read what these girls say:

Philadelphia.—"I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier did me a great deal of good. I was regular and then it went away for a long time. I went to many doctors but none helped me, so I wrote to you for advice and followed your directions. I took the Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and now I am strong and healthy again. I cannot express my gratitude to you."—Lizzie Weber, 4152 N. Fairhill St., Phila., Pa.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"Having suffered for five long years with depression and great pain every month, spending big money for doctors and getting no cure, I at last went to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine with little hope, but found just what I needed. To-day I am regular and have no pain, thanks to your advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Lizzie Steiger, 5519 Fleet Ave., S.E., Cleveland, Ohio.

Is it not reasonable to suppose that a medicine that did so much for these girls would do the same for any other girl who is suffering with the same troubles?

These testimonial letters are the genuine and truthful statements from honest people.

Does it not seem the only sensible thing to give such a medicine at least a trial? You may be sure that it can do you no harm, and there is lots of proof that it will do you much good.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

THE CHAMELEON.

The chameleon is not allied closely to any other animal. It stands as a genus by itself. The nervous centers in one lateral half operate independently of those in the other. This seems outrageous, and it is, but it is true. The chameleon has two lateral centers of perception—of sensation and of motion. There exists also a third center—that common one in which abides the power of concentration by means of which the two sides of the creature may be forced to work in harmony with each other. But this center of concentration does not at all ways dominate the situation. Notwithstanding the strictly symmetrical structure of the animal's two halves the eyes move quite independently, and they convey distinct and separate impressions to their respective centers of perception. As of the eyes, so of the other members—each reports to and is controlled by its own center.

The result is that when the faculty of concentration becomes disturbed everything is jumbled. Let the chameleon be much agitated and its movements grow erratic. There are those of two creatures fastened together, or, rather, of two half creatures joined. Each half exhibits its intention of going its separate way. The result is a pitiable confusion of movement. There is no concordance of action. A curious example of the chameleon's helplessness when unduly excited is found in the fact that it cannot swim. The shock of being plunged into water upsets the poise of its faculty for concentration. Forthwith each side strikes out wildly for itself, to its own undoing. The chameleon is the only four legged vertebrate that cannot swim.

When the creature is calm every impulse to motion is referred to the common center of concentration, and the entire organism acts in fitting accord with the commands issued by that faculty. Thus, while totally different impressions from the two eyes are transmitted from their centers to the common one, that concentrating power decides as to which scene is the more important and then directs the eye otherwise engaged also to regard it. The same principle applies in the control of all the members—so long as the animal remains unexcited. An observer may easily verify the existence of this dual nature in a superficial way by some experiments with a sleeping chameleon. A touch on one side of the animal will make that side up, while the other side sleeps calmly on.

WOMEN OF NOTE.

Mrs. T. P. O'Connor's visit to this country is in the interest of Irish industries.

Mrs. Taft's name heads the roll of honorary members of the Daughters of Ohio. She was elected at a recent meeting of the society which was held in New York.

Miss Catharine Regina Seabury, for some years the head of St. Agnes' school at Albany, is spoken of as the successor of Miss Agnes Irwin as dean of Radcliffe college.

Queen Wilhelmina, who has recently become a convert to perfumes, prefers the soft, uncertain French odors, and she uses them in a French way. She scents each article of clothing strongly, but with a different odor.

Mrs. Ellen B. Richards, instructor in the department of chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is to give a course of lectures at the University of California the coming summer on "Household Economics."

Mrs. Mary Nevins Bull, widow of Dr. William T. Bull, has presented to the New York Academy of Medicine a bronze bust of her husband, which was Dr. Bull's last gift to her before he died. She gives it to the academy in his son's name.

Little Miss Emily Boynton of Colorado, who is only thirteen years old, has a record as a mountain climber. She recently ascended Long's peak, commonly called the American Matterhorn, which is 14,271 feet high, scorned the aid of a guide, even at the dangerous points. The feat would be difficult for a man.

Countess von Boos Farrar, a niece of Archduke Francis, is giving her whole time to New York's sick and needy. She has lately secured seventy-five acres at Spring Valley, N. Y., and will build there a home for children of criminals, not only to care for the waifs, but to make a thorough test of the theory of inherited crime. Criminologists are said to be much interested in the results of the venture.

THE TELESCOPE.

Galileo's Rude Instrument the First Used in Astronomy.

The first telescope was pointed toward the sky on Jan. 7, 1610, when Galileo first tried his rude instrument and was rewarded by discovering some of the moons of Jupiter. No great magnifying power was needed for this, as at least one of the moons is large enough to be seen by the naked eye and did not the nearness of the brilliant planet prevent this. Lenses had been known for a long time and were at that time in common use by near-sighted persons.

The name of the real discoverer of the telescope seems to be unknown, but the accepted story now is that two young sons of a Middlebury of Lippersley some time between 1605 and 1608, while playing with some lenses, happened to hold two of them at a distance from each other and were surprised and delighted to find that the weather vane on a neighboring tower seemed to come near them when looked at through the two lenses. In April, 1609, a little telescope made in Holland was offered for sale in Paris.

The next month Galileo, then a professor in the university at Padua, heard of this instrument and realized at once its importance in the study of astronomy. From the description of the Dutch instrument he had one made at once, and in August he astounded the people of Venice by showing them from the top of the campanile persons entering the doors of the church at Murano. This spectacle was less than two inches in diameter and magnified three times. From this crude instrument of Galileo to the monster telescopes forty inches in diameter of the present day is the development of only three centuries.—Argonaut.

WILL LEAVE FOR BEAVER COLLEGE

Charleroi Girl Entertainers Friends
At a Farewell
Dinner

Miss Adele Heuple entertained a number of her high school girl friends and some out-of-town friends last night at her home on Lincoln avenue at a course dinner. Next week Miss Heuple expects to leave for Beaver College, where she will take a music and general course, and the affair last night partook somewhat of the nature of a farewell. Covers were laid for 14, and besides the local girls who were present there were guests from Wheeling, Pittsburg, Monongahela and Roscoe. The decorations were in green and white, and at each plate was a white rose. Following the dinner a pleasant time was enjoyed with various social diversions.

HUNTING THE WALRUS.

The Eskimo Takes Advantage of the Animal's Curiosity.

In his frail skinboat it is a difficult and dangerous task for the Eskimo to go out to sea forty to sixty miles and intercept the walrus as he passes on his migration into the Arctic.

One carcass will fill his boat, for it weighs from 1,000 to 3,000 pounds. He hunts the walrus when they are lying asleep on the ice floes in herds from ten to several hundred. Death must be instantaneous, else with a few rolls or the peculiar lumbering, bumping movement (seen of the seal when ashore), he makes the few feet to the water and then is lost, as he has not sufficient blubber and air to float. He has much natural curiosity, and if not scared by shots will come up close to your boat or the ice floe on which you are sitting, spouting, snorting and rolling his eyes; with his gleaming tusks and bristled snout he has an uncanny, goblin, monster-like appearance. A herd of fifty or sixty of them will come up on masses, raise high out of the water to stare at you, then snort, spurt and disappear again, only to come up on the same spot and repeat the maneuver. Indefinitely. Taking advantage of this the Eskimos hide behind ice hummocks and throw a harpoon into one, then snub the tough rawhide line around an ice cake. He must perforce come up to blow, and he is then killed with the rifle. The thick skin and the mass of blubber and meat beneath render him almost invulnerable. Pacific Monthly.

Ordinance No.

An ordinance authorizing the grading, paving with vitrified brick and curbing of McKean Avenue as extended from Thirteenth street to the line of the Borough of North Charleroi.

Be it ordained and enacted by the Burgess and Town Council of the Borough of Charleroi, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same:

Section 1. That the Burgess of the Borough of Charleroi be and is hereby authorized and instructed as required by Ordinance No. 1, Section 5, as amended, to advertise for and receive proposals for the grading, paving with vitrified brick and curbing all that portion of McKean Avenue in said Borough lying between Thirteenth Street in said Borough and the line of the Borough of North Charleroi, a distance of feet; (the grading, paving and curbing herein provided being for the purpose of connecting the southern portion of McKean Avenue, which is graded, paved and curbed, with Lincoln Avenue in the Borough of North Charleroi, which is graded, paved and curbed, in accordance with the plans and specifications of the Borough Engineer, approved by the Burgess and Town Council, and to enter into contract, in conjunction with Council, with any responsible party or parties, such being the lowest and best bidder or bidders, for said grading, paving and curbing; such party or parties to give satisfactory security to the town in a contract conforming to the said plans and specifications of the said Borough Engineer, and under his direct supervision and approval.

Section 2. Upon the completion and approval of said grading, paving and curbing, and the costs and expenses ascertained, the Burgess and Town Council shall assess two-thirds (2/3) of the costs and expenses of the same (excluding, however, from such assessment of two-thirds, the costs and expenses of grading and paving between the rails of the tracks of the Pittsburgh Railway Company, between the tracks and for a width of one foot outside thereof) upon the owners of the real estate bounding or abutting thereon by an equal assessment on the feet front bounding or abutting as aforesaid; to be estimated by the Borough Engineer, as provided by the Act of assembly approved April 28, 1926, P. L. 44, and the act of May 31, 1927, P. L. 114.

Ordained and enacted into an ordinance this 5th day of September 1930.

John E. Hein, President of Council.

Attest:

Ira L. Nickelson, Clerk of Council.

Examined and approved by me this 6th day of September 1930.
